INTRODUCTION TO OUR TRACK LEADERS

VAYLATEENA JONES is a Registered Nurse, a Licensed Mental Health Counselor and a Credentialed Alcoholism and Substance Abuse Counselor. Alarmed by the increasing violence she saw on her streets of her own neighborhood, she started the Lower East Side Power Partnership, a community organizing group that partners with local churches and other agencies to address issues such as teen pregnancy, employment and racial profiling. She has been a member of DeWitt Reformed Church. Vaylateena will be leading the track on the Marketplace.

JASMINE FLORES was a Homeschool mom to three children, and this school year is re-booting her teaching career with the New York City Department of Education. She is currently an Education Consultant with Usborne Books & More and her blog is LearningWithMom.org. She founded the IGNITE prayer ministry in the Lower East Side, served as a youth minister, pastored and was ordained with Christian Ministries, Inc. Jasmine will be leading the track on the Home.

LARISSA LAM is a motivational speaker, solo artist, worship leader, songwriter and TV/radio host. In June 2015, she released her 4th solo album Love & Discovery. She is a co-host on UTalk Radio, a new advice call-in show for young adults with international speaker/author, Steve Russo. She is also on staff with Artists in Christian Testimony International, an arts missions sending organization. Larissa will be leading the track on the Arts.

REV. AJUNG SOJWAL is the pastor of The Church of the Divine Love in Monroese, NY and has served in Episcopalian churches in the Greater New York City area, including Church of Our Savior in Chinatown. In 2014, she was awarded The Louisville Institute Grant for her Pastoral Study Project on the impact of recent immigrant women clergy in the mainline churches. This year she was awarded the Writing Pastor Workshop Grant. Ajung will be leading the track on the Church.
